PART A: ACADEMIC MATTERS

The following recommendations of the Curriculum Committee were approved at the School of Public Affairs Faculty Meeting on December 12, 2013. They will be effective for the Spring 2015 semester, pending approval of the Board of Trustees.

AIII: Changes in Degree Programs

AIII.10:1p. The following revisions are proposed for the MEd in Higher Education Administration in the School of Public Affairs.

Program Code: 21853

HEGIS Code: 0827.00

Effective: Spring 2015

| From   | To  |

| The Master of Science in Education (MEd) program in higher education administration offers a curriculum that emphasizes higher education management, student services, personnel management, information systems, and institutional leadership. This program is designed to prepare the student for administrative leadership and supervisory positions in postsecondary institutions, including community colleges, senior colleges, and universities. Students in the MEd program are required to complete 30–33 credits. Students who do not have a minimum of one years experience in an administrative position in higher education are required to complete a 3-credit internship. | The Masters of Science in Education, Higher Education Administration (MEd-HEA) prepares students for leadership and supervisory positions in higher education institutions, as well as in advocacy organizations and research centers focused on post-secondary education. The curriculum covers key aspects of college administration, including governing institutions, organizing academic departments and offices, delivering student services, preparing and implementing budgets, managing collective bargaining, and conducting educational research. Contemporary topics are explored, such as online education, change management, and the globalization of higher education. In addition to SPA faculty, senior CUNY administrators teach in the program. |

|  | Graduates pursue careers as executives, directors, coordinators, and analysts of programs and services. A total of 36 credits are required for the degree if an internship is not needed. Students without at least one year of administrative work experience in higher education are required to complete a 3 credit internship for a total of 39 credits. There are 21 required credits and 15 elective credits. Students have two options for completing the 15 elective requirements for the degree. They may complete a set of general higher education and public administration courses, or they may choose a specialization in institutional research and assessment. The specialization is for students looking for a solid grounding in research methods, statistics, learning assessment, and program evaluation. It is designed for those wanting to work in the growing field of university research and assessment as well as for those seeking to be intelligent users of research reports. Students must complete PAF 9170 in the required core if they opt for the specialization. The specialization requires two courses—PAF 9172 and PAF 9325—and the choice of three analytical courses. |

Education Administration program with a Specialization

in Institutional Research and Assessment

Total credits required for the MEd in Higher 36-39

Rationale: There are several interrelated rationales for all of the above changes. These changes raise the visibility and reputation of the HEA program; make it more attractive to students who are not currently the object of active recruiting; and increase the academic rigor of the program. In addition, they strengthen the ties to other programs in SPA (in particular to the MPA program) relative to both academic offerings and the outside perception of the program and reduce the rigidity of the current program by increasing the number of electives. These changes begin the process of adding optional specializations to the general program—in this case, a specialization in institutional research. From an employment perspective, adding this specialization is sensible since it is in demand and is likely to capture the interest of our students. It is also congruent with the idea of strengthening ties to other SPA programs. Finally, these changes are part of an effort to increase student quality and overall enrollment.

Section AIV: New Courses

AIV:10.1p. The following is a new course in the MPA Program in the School of Public Affairs.

Program Code: 01966

HEGIS Code: 2102.00

Effective: Spring 2015

Course Number: PAF 9184

Title: International Institutions and Global Governance

Hours: 3.0

Credits: 3.0

Prerequisites or Co-requisite: None

Course Description: In a world of globalization and global threats—financial contagion, terrorism, proliferation, climate change, health crises—this course examines the role of international institutions and norms and asks whether they can make the world a safer, more just place. Why did states create global institutions—and why in these forms? How does their structure limit or reinforce their ability to address problems? How do norms develop and change? What is the role of NGOs and of multinational corporations? How must the system adapt to new actors and challenges?

Rationale: Globalization will profoundly affect all of our students: their personal lives, their health and security, their career choices and opportunities. This course will allow them to master the basics of the global governance system as well as some of the most profound global challenges facing our world. The course will also give students a strong introduction to the workings of large bureaucracies and an understanding of the skills they will need to develop and promote clear policy positions.

This course is an elective for the MPA program, to be offered once per year with a projected enrollment of 20 students.

AIV:10.2p. The following is a new course in the HEA Program in the School of Public Affairs.

Program Code: 21853

HEGIS Code: 0827.00

Effective: Spring 2015

Course Number: PAF 9325

Title: Institutional Research

Hours: 3.0

Credits: 3.0

Prerequisite: PAF 9170

Course Description: This course provides students with an overview of institutional research as both a profession and a mode of inquiry. Students will review the fundamentals of the field in terms of concepts, analytics and management. Additionally, they will also work directly with the analysis and reporting of data.

Rationale: Higher education is under continued and mounting pressure to make sound but difficult decisions in a host of areas, including enrollment management, faculty productivity, strategic planning, compliance, outcomes assessment and institutional effectiveness. As a consequence, Institutional Research has become more important to senior decision-makers in a wide variety of areas in higher education. In the future, the need for competent decision support by means of institutional research will continue to grow. Additionally, the area is maturing as a profession and the field will be well served by an emerging work force that has been specifically trained in the analysis of higher education data and issues.

This course is a core for the Specialization in Institutional Research in the Higher Education Administration program, to be offered once per year with a projected enrollment of 20-25 students.

AIV:10.3p. The following is a new course in the HEA Program in the School of Public Affairs.

Course Number: PAF 9390

Title: Capstone Seminar in Higher Education Administration

Hours: 3.0

Credits: 3.0

Prerequisites or Co-requisites: PAF 9120, PAF 9308, PAF 9317 or PAF 9170, PAF 9330 and PAF 9336

Course Description: Advanced seminar in which students produce a semester project drawing from the full course of study toward the Masters of Science in Education, Higher Education Administration (MSED-HEA). Special attention is placed on incorporating aptitudes introduced in the core curriculum. The project may involve policy research, intensive study of an organization, development of a rationale for new or changed service programs, or some combination of these. Open only to MSED-HEA students.

Rationale: The students require a summary Capstone course to complete the MSED-HEA degree.

This course is required for Masters of Science in Education (MSED-HEA) students with less than one year of work experience in higher education administration. It may be used as an elective course for students with higher education administration experience. The course is graded on a pass/no-credit basis. The internship pass/no-credit selection does not preclude the completion of another elective course for pass/no-credit. PAF 9322 may be repeated, but only with the permission of the instructor and the Associate Dean of the School of Public Affairs. It is not open to students who have completed PAF 9191, PAF 9192, or PAF 9195. |
| Prerequisite or Corequisite | The internship must be approved by faculty advisor.   | Prerequisite | Instructor permission.  |

Rationale: The change specifies the grading policy and the number of hours of work required in the MSED-HEA internship course.

An introduction to higher education governance, focusing on the participants, processes, and problems in institutional decision making. | Description | This course examines the structure and history of American higher education. The existing institutional structure of higher education will be studied, focusing on the main actors and their roles with respect to questions of governance and institutional decision-making. Key policy issues relating to the historical and structural development of higher education will be discussed. |
|--------------------|---|--------------------|---|

Rationale: This course will now become the main introductory course in the Higher Education Administration program. As such, it will serve as a survey course examining the history and structure of higher education in the United States, incorporating policy questions and issues. The proposal is to merge the course with 9331, History of US Higher Education. This will condense the generalized portion of the curriculum and permit more focus on specializations and electives. The course will also introduce policy issues, but is not intended to replace the more comprehensive PAF 9338 (Higher Education, Politics, and Public Policy), which may continue to be offered as an elective.
